STATES THE LAW GOVERNING DEBATE

To Snow Why He Cannot Force a Vote on the Measure, and Appeals to the Patrictism of Senators -A Hornet's Nest.

WASHINGTON, Supi 10 —Mr Squire gave notice of a substitute which no intended to offer for the bilt-to repeal the after purchase act, and it was read in full. At 12 30 the bilt to repeal the after purchase act was taken up, and Mr. Voorhees, in charge of it, proceeded to make a statement to the sonate. He said that in the discharge of duties intrusted to him he had to beg the indulgence of the senate white he made a few remarks. He thought that it would not be misspentitime to instruct the public mind somewhat in reference to the organization of the senate, the laws which govern it would not be misspentitime to instruct the public mind somewhat in reference to the organization of the senate, the laws which govern that sould and what could not be done. In dedag so he addresed himself to the great body of intelligent public opinion as well as in certain quarters to a dense and opaque degree of ignorance he some respects innocent, and others malicious. On the 4th of March 1739, the senate of the United States had convened or had endeavored to convene for (there were but dight members present in the city only). Shortly afterwards a system of rules had been reported by committee and adopted by the senate. As a material or the senate of the senate of the would read the sighth rule adopted on the 16th of April. When a question is before the senate no metion shall be received, except for an amendment of the previous question, for post pouns, the main question or to adjourn." He had no doubt that rule would be a surprise to men inside the chamber as well as to mee outside of it.

He had no doubt that rule would be a sur prisu to men inside the chamber as well as to men outside of it.

The ninth rule was. 'The previous quastion having been moved and seconded the quastion from the chair shall be 'Shall the main question from the chair shall be 'Shall the main question moved be put etc etc.'

These two provisions had governed the sen ate for seventeen years. So that there had been a previous question in the senate for seventeen years—as there was now in the house of representatives. It had been bor rowed from the old English system of closing debate. It had been the provided the time the control of northwest winds.

Ho wished to emphasize the fact that closure rules one prevailed in the senate and had been deliberately abandoned, and that in chan dealing it the senate of a propriety the patrictim and public interest of every senator and the senate of the cond to abuse the nationee of the anate or to outrage the public business or the public duy. For eighty seven years that condition of tity For eighty seven years that condition of things had existed From 1806 to the present time the sonate had proceeded under rules—te might say of self-interest, of high prohe might say of self interest, of high propriety not to speak of senatorial courtesy or senatorial dignity, but of American manhood of a sense of fairness to the public, a sense of decency to itself enjoying all the rights guar anteed to it by the constitution—freedom or liberty of discussion. Se that in his judgment the criticisms of a certain class fell and would fall from the senate as they fell from him.

So far an personal criticism of himself was concerned, he might as well embrace the present opportunity as another to say that they were met with absolute and stern defiance.
And he treated with scorn and miscrable contorapt discussions coming from New York bankers or anywhere else as to the motives which governed him. That kind of criticism came (he added with much bitterness of tene) from a class of which the Saviour of the world nevel spoine with respect, and' said he,
'solither do I'

Mr Voorhees then, alluding to the resistence with which democratic senators (under the leadership of Mr Gorman) had met the force bill, asked whether it was claimed that that bill had been debtted to death. It had not been he said. It had been amply debated, was displaced, unhorsed, defeated by a majority vote, under the law which governes all liberty loving people. If had not been talked to death It had been voted to death. Thas was all he and his own with it. But he appealed to senators to vote. Action, he said, had to come, and senators might as well know when it would come. In a free country it could not be ent and in down with it. But he appealed to senators to vote. Action, he said, had to come would come In a free sountry it could not be treated with disrespect. He was the last man to use a majority for the purpose of trampling on the minority A misselly had its rights, guaranteed and embedded in the constitution like was tenacious of those rights—habitually so constitutionally so, for he had been in a minority a good deal of his life and respected the minority's rights and privileges

'But,' he added impressively "what governs in the United States? What governs in this body? A majority placed you, sir (ad dressing the vice-president), in that chair A majority placed in their chairs the officers is front of you. Every official within the sound of my voice is the creature of a majority. The law is voted by a majority. The foundations of liberty everywhere in this country, in this land and other lands are laid by majorities. Can the senactors who are opposing this measure to the bitter end and in extremes justify themselves (I do not believe that they will at tempt to do so) in dofying the law underlying the proper government of the world.

After continuing at some further length Mr Voorhees said. "A vote, I repeat has to come The force bill itself, which has been so often spoken of, is an evidence that the vote must come I think I understood the cules as well as anybody and now I pease to hear we other there is any response to the suggestions which I have made as to the agreeting to a time when the vote on the bill may be taken?"

Mr Voorhees had not long to wait for a reply to list challenge. Instantly Mr Dubois the vote on the bill may be taken?"

Mr. Voorhees had not long to wait for a reply to his challenge. Instantly Mr. Dubols (rep. Idaho) was on his feet. He said that the senator from Indians had been trying to explain to somebody out of the chamber why he had not boon attempting to do something on trary so the dignity of the senate. But he had not told senators anything which they did not already know. The senator from Indians tried to illustrate by the force bill the position that a vote could not be prevented. The senator surely did not mean this seriously.

In reply to Mr. Dubots, Mr. Hoar made a humorous reference to the senator from Idaho and said that he (Mr. Hoar) would be found to be considerant at all times as a good republican Man in All Its Phases.

The senator from Indians could not say that this was an inconsequential matter, for he was or record against that, and had said to the past that the protection of silver was more important than anything that could come before the senates If he wasted night assations, Mr Teller warned him that the friends of repeal must be present too Friends of silver were neither frightened or moved by the public opinion quoted by Mr Voorhees, because the real public opinion of the country—not the aggregated capital of national banks—was opposed to the repeal of the Sherman act. If public opinion had got wrong in this or any other questions, senators should be guided by their own judgments ments

Mr Tellor said he had also opposed the force bill, and, in his judgment, if the opponents of that bill had absolutely throttled all other isgistation, even appropriation bills they would have been justified. The pending bill he considered more dangerous to the rights of the people than the force bill for that was simply a political measure, while this struck at our system of finance. This was a more important matter than may presented to the people since the war. Reconstruction and all that attended it were inconsequential in comparison. The senator from Indiana would never be able

Although the democrate claimed a quorum of their number was present this morning it was certainly not mustered at noon, although the attendance was larger than usual Mr Fitch, chairmas of the committee on the elecstances, and further by what authority the troops were acting. He said the rules and regulations of the administration relative to the opening of the Cherokoe strip had been a disgrace to the cit illustion of the ninoteenth century and the capstone of that disgrace was that after keeping settlers where they ould procure no water, the strong arm of the military had been called in and the soldiers had been allowed to shoot down inoffusive men.

Mr Tucker objected to the resolution
The speaker directed the clerk to call the committees for reports whereupon Mr Burrows in his most dulect tonce addressed there would be any objection to dispensing with the call of committees with leave to members having reports to make to file them with the clerk, except such reports as related to the federal election laws

As the oily words fell from Mr Burrows' lips Mr Tucker smilingly shook his head, and Mr Fitch rose and objected Mr Burrows, in mock astonisment, said that he would be compoled to ask to dispense with the cell, and made a motion to that effect.
The vote resulted Yeas, none mays, 172—3vo less than a quorum.
Mr Fitch moved a call of the house Mr Fitch's motion was agreed to Yeas, 172, nays 0, and the call was ordered The addition of the fitch from the word of dispense with further proceedings thereunder.
